

DCA, MAS AND INVESTIGATORS TO INSPECT POSSIBLE MH370 DEBRIS

KUALA LUMPUR: A Malaysian team will be making its way to Mozambique to inspect debris found on Tuesday, believed to be from the ill-fated Malaysia Airlines flight MH370.

Transport Minister Datuk Seri Liow Tiong Lai said the team, made up of personnel from the Department of Civil Aviation, MAS and investigators, will join its Australian counterparts there soon.

Liow confirmed that the debris would be sent to Australia but added that it would remain under Malaysian custody.

He said he had received notification of the debris on Tuesday and from examining the pictures, there was a “high probability” it originated from a Boeing 777 aircraft, the same model as MH370.

In fact, the location of the debris, which was found on a beach in Mozambique, fits the drift modelling used in the search for the ill-fated flight.

Links

<http://www.thestar.com.my/news/nation/2016/03/04/team-off-to-mozambique-dca-mas-and-investigators-to-inspect-possible-mh370-debris/>

Related News

<http://www.nbcnews.com/storyline/missing-jet/possible-mh370-debris-mozambique-consistent-drift-theory-australia-n530826>