

Suspected MH370 Part To Be Analysed In Malaysia, Says Liow

KARAK: The plane debris, said to be from missing Malaysia Airlines flight MH370, that was found in Mozambique arrived in Malaysia on Thursday.

Transport Minister Datuk Seri Liow Tiong Lai (pic) said aircraft part, which had words No Step, would be analysed by experts to determine if it came from MH370.

"We will send it to Australia for further examinations," Liow told reporters after presenting prizes to excellent students of SMK Karak Setia.

MH370, with 239 on board, disappeared while enroute from KL International Airport to Beijing on March 8, 2014.
